WHO WILL BEAT THIS BUNCH? FOR NOW, NO ONE

Left to right:
Sylvia Moss (c), Piotr Zatorski, Michal Klukowski, Jacek Kalita, Roger Lee and Michal Nowosadzki.

Moss Unstoppable!

One can play a couple of boards, a couple of days or even a couple of ALTs. Whatever it takes, in the end it's Moss. The bunch is unstoppable. The final rounds of this Midi ALT was yet another proof of this fact of life when Moss booked a clear win over Amateurs, the only competitor left.

ALT ELEVATOR

The Alt introduces a totally new format (next to all the other formats), named ALT Elevator. As the word indicates: you go up and down during one week, every day you can be in another group, depending on the results of the day before.

Halfway the NewCo competition, which is successful in any case, we did some evaluation after getting feedback from the teams. Based on this, we came up with a separate format, in which promotion and relegation follow each other on a daily basis, ending Friday. So it's a standalone event, that ends that week and everything will start again with Elevator 2.

The first Elevator will be July 26-30, 2021

You can find all the details on Alt's website: <https://alt.bridgeresults.org/>

To celebrate the new format, we will reward the first fifteen Elevator registrations with a discount (EUR 200,- instead of EUR 300,-). Teams can apply via: <https://alt.bridgeresults.org/reg/AltEvent3.htm>

THE POWER OF THE INTERMEDIATES

Martin Cantor

A heart into East's suit didn't look optimal, but every other suit was worth consideration. I'm sure I'm not alone in having many bad experiences leading QJx(+) suits, but with the accompanying 9 providing a mixture of safety and aggression, the ♣Q was my choice. The good news was that dummy did not have top honor-10. The bad news was the five card suit with those powerful middle cards, and further bad news came when declarer won the king and returned the 10, which I ducked. A heart to the 8 lost to the queen and a diamond was won by declarer's jack. Matthias Goll now led a spade towards the table, in this position:

Match 1 Board 3. S/EW

♠ K 6 5 4	♠ Q 3	♠ J 9 8
♥ A 9 8	♥ Q J 6 3	♥ K 10 5 2
♦ 4	♦ K 9 7 5 2	♦ A Q J 3
♣ A 8 7 6 4	♣ 5 2	♣ K 10
	♠ A 10 7 2
	♥ 7 4
	♦ 10 8 6
	♣ Q J 9 3

I was one of twelve players on lead against East's 3NT, after this auction:

West	North	East	South
Schmitt	Lund	Goll	Cantor
-	-	-	Pass
1♣	Pass	1♥	Pass
2♥*	Pass	2NT*	Pass
3♣	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

2♥ maybe three
2NT asking strength and support
3♣ minimum, three-card support

♠ K 6 5 4	♠ Q 3	♠ J 9 8
♥ A 9	♥ J 6 3	♥ K 10 5
♦ -	♦ K 9 7 2	♦ A Q 3
♣ A 8 7	♣ -	♣ -
	♠ A 10 7 2
	♥ 7
	♦ 10 6
	♣ J 9

I ducked, and Matthias did well to rise with the king. With the spades blocked it is now possible to make an overtrick by setting up the long club and later finessing in hearts. He chose a different approach, cashing the club ace (diamonds from North and East) and the two top hearts, then exiting with the last heart to endplay Peter, who returned the ♠Q. The writing was on the wall so I overtook, cashed the boss club and conceded the ninth trick to declarer's ♠J. Impossible for Peter to see, but if he had dropped the ♠Q under dummy's king, this line would have led to defeat, since now his small spade through declarer's jack would give me three tricks in the black suits to go with his two hearts. Whether declarer would have followed the same line on that defense is something only he knows (feel free to enlighten us, Matthias).

So much for our table. What happened elsewhere, and what might have happened if GIB (Ginsberg's Intelligent Bridgeplayer) had entered a team? There was no swing in our match, and in total nine out of twelve succeeded in 3NT, the others going two light, once on the ♥7, once on the ♣Q and once when Mike Rippey was the only South to lead the ♠2, the only card which can ensure defeat. I mentioned above the power of West's club middle cards, but that ♥7 is equally important; if declarer puts the ♠K up (not that anyone would), North has to unblock the queen, so that s/he can play one through for three tricks in the suit.

A final point on middle card power. If declarer had the ♦9 (more on this card later) instead of the 3, or even if declarer had the ♦7 and dummy's singleton were the 9, then s/he could make 3NT even on the ♠2 lead, with one spade, three hearts, three diamonds and two clubs.

We're not quite finished with this deal yet, because GIB wouldn't have been in 3NT, nor 2NT. GIB would be in 4♥, which makes from either side, or in 4♠ by West, because both of those make. 4♠ by East, on the other hand, goes off as long as South, once again, takes the ♠2. One East tried 4♥, but went two off. And one West tried 4♠, got the ♥Q lead, but went one off. At the two remaining tables North struggled in 2♦X; one of them lost the requisite 500, the other lost 800.

You sit East holding:

♠ 2 ♥ A K Q J 10 ♦ Q 9 ♣ Q 6 5 4 3

with only the opponents vulnerable and you see this auction:

West	North	East	South
-	Pass	1♥	Pass
2♥	Dbl	4♥	4♠
Dbl	Pass	Pass	Pass

Partner leads a top of nothing ♥8 and declarer follows with the 6.

When you cash a second heart declarer plays the 3 and partner the 5. What now? At three tables, sometimes with different auctions (and once with North declaring), East switched to the ♦Q. Where Ophir Reshef of Follow Suit declared, East continued with an apparently innocuous third top heart. Reshef took full advantage.

He ruffed with the jack, cashed the ♣A and played another club, discarding a diamond. West won and played his small spade but declarer took the finesse, drew the last trump and took the ruffing club finesse to establish another discard of his final diamond. See again the importance of those club spots, even the singleton ten. The limit on these hands is 3♠ for NS and 2♥ for EW, but fifteen of sixteen tables were in game, mostly in hearts, three times at the five level.

OLD SOLDIERS NEVER DIE

THEY JUST PLAY BRIDGE

Derek Diamond / Barnet Shenkin /
Victor Silverstone

Back in the seventies a group of highly talented Scots played a dominant role in the bridge world. Your editor is referring to players like Derek Diamond, Michael Rosenberg, Barnet Shenkin and Victor Silverstone. Fifty years later these 'old soldiers' are still playing bridge. And rather frantically, that is. The exception is Victor Goldberg, another Scottish bridge star, who died in 2009 at the age of 86.

We from the ALT are happy to notice the participation of three of these soldiers as members of Steve Levinson's team. Let's dive into some hands.

South kicked off with the ♠9. Declarer took in hand and advanced a the diamond to the jack. North won the king and smartly returned a club, putting declarer to the test.

At this point Silverstone was at the crossroads. He counted six spades, three diamonds and two aces (♥A and ♣A), which makes eleven tricks. So what king to finesse for the twelfth trick? In view of the passive spade lead declarer rated ♥K offside, so he finessed ♣K for 1440.

Practical bidding and well-judged play delivered Victor Silverstone and his team 13 IMPs as the slam was missed at the other table. By the way, only two other pairs bid slam (both made).

South led a diamond for queen and ace. Declarer, who could count eight tricks already, put his hopes of course on the club suit to find a ninth. Victor Silverstone solved this small problem when he tabled the ♣A, crushing the jack. The defense won the next club and cashed out in hearts. Still EW +400.

At the other table Gunnar Hallberg in the same contract on the same lead tried a low club at trick 2. That tactical maneuver proved not a success. North won the ♣J and persisted in diamonds. When the smoke cleared declarer wound up with seven tricks for a loss of 11 IMPs.

Afraid of a spade switch declarer immediately won the ♦K lead, followed by a club to the nine. South won the queen and returned a diamond to the eight and ten. North cashed ♦Q and played his last diamond, where a spade would have been much better. Derek Diamond won the fourth diamond, gave up another club and escaped for down one only.

Dealer South. Both Vul.

Provided that North becomes declarer, 3NT is cold. The best the defense can do is lead a diamond to cut off dummy. However, declarer can simply develop the two extra tricks needed by driving out the ♣A, keeping the ♣Q as an entry to the diamond suit.

A promotional image for the M*A*S*H March. It features a hand in a high-heeled shoe making a peace sign, with a helmet on the index finger. The text 'M*A*S*H' is in large pink letters at the top. To the right, it says 'THEME FROM M*A*S*H' and 'SUICIDE IS PAINLESS' in red. At the bottom right is 'THE M*A*S*H MARCH'. A large red play button is overlaid on the left. A CBS logo and the number '8536' are in the bottom left corner.

They didn't, so the suicide squeeze became inevitable. East hung on to ♠AQJ, a heart and the ♣A. When declarer exited with a club to his ace, he could cross to his partner's ♥A and get a spade back through K-10 bare for a not so painless down one.

EXPERTS HATE FINESSES - Alt Best Hands (NewCo 4)

Martin Cantor

It is a sign of the quality of play in the Alt tournaments that nominations for the Alt Best Hands Awards continue to come in at a steady rate, with roughly equal nominations for each of auction, declarer play and defense. These two from the Alt NewCo 4 caught my eye, firstly one for declarer play, then one for bidding.

Orsmond led the ace and another heart, dummy's king winning performance. Bessis ran his trumps and discarded all four of dummy's small diamonds. Orsmond discarded the ♥7, ♥9, ♦8 and ♥10, while Muller ditched the ♥3 and the ♦2, ♦4 to leave this:

Next came the three top clubs, then the ♦J to the ace, dropping East's bare king. Eight other Norths played 6♠, all on a club or spade lead. With one exception they drew trumps, played a club or two, and tried the diamond finesse, going one off. The exception was Andrew Robson who took the trump lead in hand and immediately played a heart. East agonized over this for a while and ducked, allowing Andrew to discard his other heart on the clubs, draw trumps and concede a diamond. Whether he would have played for the squeeze, or tried the finesse, we will never know (unless he cares to drop us a line). At our featured table credit should also go to Orsmond for baring his ♦K early, but part of the beauty of the deal is that the squeeze was almost a show-up one. Yes, West might have had the #K9 left, but then East would have started with ♥AQ10974, and with that he might well have overcalled the opening bid. It might have been a little harder if Muller had discarded the ♥Q and kept another small diamond, but I suspect Bessis was always getting this right.

Creative

It's not often that I see a well-known convention used in an entirely new way. And it wasn't just me who was surprised at Michal Nowosadzki's innovation; the other three players were equally surprised and equally impressed.

FINAL HIGHLIGHTS

Toine van Hoof

To win their fourth Alt event this year team Moss needed to overcome a 10 VPs deficit in the last two rounds. It was Danish, so they could catch up with the leading Amateurs team in two stages. Not much happened in round 11 except for this:

Dbl take-out

When your opponents can make eleven tricks in all five denominations, it's not a good idea to enter the bidding, especially not at equal vulnerability. Jiang Gu put his head on the chopping block and got what he deserved. The defense by Michal Klukowski and Piotr Zatorski was merciless. East led the ♠5 to the king, won the heart return with the ace and played another spade to his partner's ace. Then West played a third round of trumps to the queen. When declarer continued with the ♦K Zatorski took the ace. A heart to the queen was followed by a club. East won with the jack, cashed the ace and queen and gave his partner a diamond ruff. Klukowski still had two kings to cash and the contract was down five, 1100.

In the replay EW for the Amateurs made 3NT +2 for a loss of 12 IMPs. This was exactly the margin at the end of the match (18-6; 13.71-6.29). Now Moss was trailing by less than 3 VPs.

This was the most exciting hand of the final round:

No such luck for Gu in 5♠. Unerringly Zatorski led the ♣A, fetching the king from Klukowski. A club to the queen meant one down and a 12 IMPs gain for Moss.

In a desperate attempt to turn the match around, a couple of boards later Ai-Tai Lo opened, favorable in third position, 3♠ with:

♠ Q 9 8 7 6 3 ♥ 9 4 2 ♦ - ♣ A 7 6 3

He was allowed to play there and went three off. In the replay EW for the Amateurs went two off in 3NT for a loss of 8 IMPs.

In the remaining deals only a few IMPs changed hands. Moss won by 27-7 (15.58-4.42) and that was more than enough to triumph.

You would like to reach 6♣ with the NS cards - perhaps not easy even given a free run after the auction starts 1♣-1♦, when it is unclear (at least to me) how South should continue. (Perhaps a game forcing 2♥?)

Let's see how some of the combatants fared:

- 2♣ Weak 2♦ or strong

- Dbl Take-out of diamonds

It's easy to see why South doubled. Whether it is a better bid than 3♣ I cannot say, but being void in diamonds increases the chance that partner will pass.

South led the ♣A and continued with the queen, declarer ruffing in dummy and continuing with the ♦Q covered by the king and ace, South discarding the ♥8. The ♥J was ducked, but South won the next one and gave his partner a ruff. North cashed the ♦J10 and exited with a club, which meant declarer was three down, -500.

An easy +420, but a loss of 2 IMPs. Is there any case for North to bid 4♦ over 4♣ and then bid 4♠ over South's 4♥?

You can understand why North bid 3NT. If South was not going to bid 3♦ then perhaps 3♣ is a possibility? You need very good agreements in this situation, especially when you have not yet shown any club length. East led the ♥J and declarer took ten tricks, +430.

I refer you to the remark I made above about North's options over 4♣. I'll add that suppose you remove North's diamond honors - should he then bid 4♠ over 4♣ - would that be an S.J. Simon 'master bid'?

4♦ 'Splinter?'

If North had bid 4♠ over 4♦ I wonder if South would have taken the plunge? Not easy, as you have no idea how many hearts North holds. +420 meant a loss of 9 IMPs.

This deal proved too difficult for everyone, NS settling for 5♣/3NT or taking a penalty from a diamond contract. However, it perhaps offers some food for thought.

When you are watching bridge matches every day of the week you are on the lookout for deals that might be of use in an article or textbook. This deal from the fourth round will have its uses:

East led the ♣8 and West allowed that to run to declarer's nine. The ♠3 was covered by the eight, nine and jack, West exiting with the ♦7 for the king and ace. South found the strongest defense of two rounds of hearts, North winning and returning the ♥9. When declarer pitched dummy's ♠8 South ruffed with the ♦J ensuring two down, -100 but a 12 IMP gain.

If West passes 3♦ (which happened more than once) North can choose between a double and 3♥. Where that happened South either raised to 4♥, or bid 3♠ which led to 4♠. In the match between Yoshka and Macavity both North's doubled 3♦ and South bid 4♠. Jason Pitt and Ewan McNay saved in 5♦, which was worth 3 IMPs.

Reallowing Playing the ALT

The bridge world is well aware that the ALT organization fights against irregularities occurring in online bridge. As a result, quite a few players did not apply for participation in ALT events anymore. They assumed that they might not be invited for reasons ALT may have had.

Some players contacted ALT in order to clarify what happened in the past. ALT makes its own considerations about these situations, such as the time not having played anymore, the seriousness of irregularities, the belief that there will be no future issues, et cetera. Bearing all this in mind, ALT is willing to reallow Alessandro Gandoglia playing in ALT-events. This statement is approved for publishing in this bulletin by Mr. Gandoglia.
